Many of us have deep connections to our houses. Hopefully our house became our home. For many of us, our house may be the place where we raised our children, had family gatherings, and entertained friends. Ideally, it is our safe place and our refuge. Many people purchased homes when they were younger and had full mobility. Transportation wasn’t a consideration because we could drive to the places where we needed to go. We weren’t concerned that bedrooms were on the second floor of a two-story house. We often had our washers and dryers located in an area that required carrying dirty laundry up and down steps. This was probably fine when we were younger and had good knees, hips, shoulders, and backs. As we age, we may find that some features of our homes that we once overlooked have now become barriers. Staircases could become insurmountable obstacles and hazards. Bathrooms might now pose a variety of risks for slips and falls. The flooring that we chose for appearance could now increase the chance of falling, or lead to more serious injury if we do fall. According to the CDC, one fourth of Americans over the age of 65 falls each year. Falls are the leading cause of fatal and non-fatal injuries to older adults.

The National Institute on Aging offers some great suggestions for making our homes safer:

- Ensure that you have good lighting in areas where you walk.
- Keep the areas where you walk in your home clutter-free. Don’t leave papers, boxes, shoes, purses, or clothes on the floor.
- Install sturdy and secure handrails near steps.
- Make sure that any electrical cords are secured and out of walkways.
- Place nonskid mats, strips, or carpet on all surfaces that may get wet in your bathroom.
- Leave on a light in your bathroom or install a motion sensor light. A nightlight is another good option.
- Install grab bars near your toilet and in your tub.
- Don’t use throw rugs, area rugs, and carpet runners!

Our overall fitness plays a huge role in our ability to age in place. Strength and flexibility are incredibly important, and we offer many activities here at Mill Race Center that can help you improve your physical wellness. Matter of Balance (another session is starting in March) is a perfect way to start. Bodies in Motion, Walk and Roll, and Zumba Gold are activities that will help you gain strength, fitness, and stamina. If your home is your castle, be a wellness warrior!

March 14
How to let go of being a “good” person and become a better person. By: Dolly Chugh
What if your attachment to being a "good" person is holding you back from actually becoming a better person? In this accessible talk, social psychologist Dolly Chugh explains the puzzling psychology of ethical behavior like why it's hard to spot your biases and acknowledge mistakes and shows how the path to becoming better starts with owning your mistakes. "In every other part of our lives, we give ourselves room to grow except in this one, where it matters most," Chugh says.

April 11 at 1:00pm
How to stay calm when you know you’ll be stressed. By: Daniel Levitin
You're not at your best when you're stressed. In fact, your brain has evolved over millennia to release cortisol in stressful situations, inhibiting rational, logical thinking but potentially helping you survive, say, being attacked by a lion. Neuroscientist Daniel Levitin thinks there's a way to avoid making critical mistakes in stressful situations, when your thinking becomes clouded the pre-mortem. "We all are going to fail now and then," he says. "The idea is to think ahead to what those failures might be."
